Bank Examiner Wightman Standing Aloof From the Affair.

As might be expected, the department rules require that a bank examiner wight as relates to the Stoutt-Jones affair, nor permit himself to be interviewed for publication. This injunction applies to Bank Examiner Wightman, as well as to others. But a persistent effort appears to be making, by means of misprepresentation, to induce him to say or to something that would qualify him as a witness at some stage of the judinal proceedings.

He says he was walking down Main street on the west side, and when about half way between Fourth and Fifth South heard a pistol shot, and is quite comident he heard only one. He hurried on down to Fifth South and saw Mr. Stout walk into his residence. Very quickly quite a crowd gathered around the billboard, and he mingled with them for awhile, finally continuing on his way home, which is out near Tenth South and Shith East. He said he did not see anyone rush south from the billboards, but that is not strange, since Don Lochrie, the boy whe stood on the Fifth South and Main sirest crossing, also was unable to see a man running away Don said a man passed him going south on Main, just after the shooting, but did not stop on account f it. The significance of Gnylor's statement is its verification of that mode by Don Lochrie, who also was positive he heard but one shot fired.

CONTESTANTS WILL ALLEGE SHE WAS NOT OF SOUND MIND.

Judge Colborn Was Her Guardian and Made His Report a Few Days Ago, Showing She Died of Paresis -Left an Estate Valued Above Forty Thousand Dollars.

When the last will and testament of the late Minnie Himmah is filed for probate, as it doubtless will be within the next few days, there will be a legal contest fnaugurated which will be an interesting one.

Minnie Himmah is a woman who came here from Colorado some time ago. She had considerable property and some money. It was ascertained, after she had been here for a time, that she was developing signs of unsoundness of mind. These symptoms increased, and finally her case was taken into court. Judge Hiles selected Judge E. F. Colboin as her guardian, and he acted until the time of her death, which took place Nov. 27.

In his report, filed a few days ago, Judge Colborn informed the court that
